You can change a layer to a regular layer by clicking the eye icon. Layers are the fundamental unit of Photoshop. And they are created by using the Layer palette, and they are used to hold the information required to make a composite image. The order of the layers that are open will appear here. In metal cutting, sliding may be used. For example, if a cutting insert with a groove is attached to a tool body, a cutting motion with a cutting edge of the cutting insert is performed with a cutting motion of the tool body where the tool body moves along a sliding movement on the workpiece. In order to facilitate sliding of the tool body, a lubricating medium or lubricant, such as oil is normally provided between the tool body and the workpiece. However, cutting fluids or lubricants may be used also, and may even be required for reasons of environmental protection. In any case, the cutting lubrication significantly affects the required costs of production of the cutting tool and also the service life of the cutting tool, as well as possible malfunctioning of the tool. Generally, the problem for the lubricant to be applied successfully in the sliding of the tool body on the workpiece is that the lubricant must have a certain viscosity so that the lubricant completely fills the gap between the tool body and the workpiece and can be transferred to the area of sliding. In addition, a certain degree of liquid pressure is needed. By means of this pressure, the lubricant may fill the entire gap of the tool body and the workpiece, as well as penetrate the area of sliding. Because of this, there are several different solutions for lubricating the tools of a metal working machine, which solutions are, however, often all available at the same time. When a machine is changed over from one solution to another solution, this may cause considerable disturbances, especially in machines with a high number of different types of tools, which machine, for example, is a feeder or a band saw. For example, there are solutions in which the lubricant is introduced by means of a pump driven by a motor. This is performed directly in the machine head, in which the spindle is located. Pumping the lubricant by means of a pump is, however, relatively time-consuming. It is also necessary to provide a duct from the pump to the different machine heads, and this could cause loss of time and delays in the machine operation, and thus, increase in wear. It is also possible to use a lot of different tubes or tubings, which are difficult to handle and which must be replaced relatively often, in which case the tubes must also be changed in the manufacture of the machine. An example of a so-called liquid lubrication solution is a system in which the so-called standing wave system

MCCurrency Desiderata "Desiderata" is a poem written by Max Ehrmann in 1912 and published in the December 19, 1937 issue of Fortune magazine. It was written after Ehrmann's wife accidentally told him that she was a four-month pregnant. As a result of this, Ehrmann wrote about his life and the meaning of life in the following eight lines. The poem is structured like a guide to happiness, or a creed of the rich. Its heavy emphasis on prosperity, an emphasis at odds with Marxist thought and economic realities of the 1930s, led Ehrmann to rework it. The motto at the head is "my own thoughts are my own, but not mine alone", a quotation from philosopher Friedrich Nietzsche. Some lines Max Ehrmann I can but love her from afar. A heart has just one love, And that I have, too, Will never know with all

The secrets of her heart. To love another woman Is to love a woman less, And so my love is now all I ask of her. Desiderata I can only love her from afar. A heart has just one love, And that I have Will never know with all The secrets of her heart. To love another woman Is to love a woman less, And so my love is all I ask of her. The phrase "from afar" is to "love her from a distance", in the sense of love as a distance from
